

Clergy-Labor Prayer Breakfast

Prayerfully Standing with Workers

Join with religious leaders, congregants, labor leaders, and advocates for immigrant and worker rights to reflect on faith, work, justice, and our community.

Our congregants, our friends, and our neighbors leave their homes every day to work to provide for their families. However, workers face a host of obstacles, including wage theft and dangerous working conditions.

As people of faith and advocates of justice, we believe:

- Work is a blessing and responsibility, an expression of our faith.
- Work gives meaning to life and the means by which to enjoy life.
- Workers are not tools to be exploited or abused.
- All workers, whether engaged in intellectual or manual labor, are to be respected.
- Employers and workers can expect from each other personal responsibility and quality of work.

Workers speak out at the "Save Our Ride" rally on July 9, 2010

The Miami-Dade Wage Theft Ordinance is passed, February 18, 2010

When: August 11, 2010, 8:30-10:30 am

Where: International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (IBEW) hall, 1657 NW 17th Ave., Miami, 33125

Suggested Donation: $15

RSVP: Erin Marth, South Florida Interfaith Worker Justice, (786)344-0829 or erinmarth@sfiwj.org

South Florida Interfaith Worker Justice

150 SW 13th Ave., Miami, FL 33135

www.sfiwj.org